The Yekîneyên Parastina Jin (YPJ), or Women's Protection Units, is a militia of about 20,000 women in Rojava and northern Syria. Since 2012, they have been on the frontlines defending women, ethnic minorities, and the democratic revolution in Rojava against ISIS/Daesh. The Rojava Revolution is organized along the principles of democratic confederalism, an inspiring example of the possibility of communalism.
